He Hears & He Understands

In May we welcomed another family member. It has been lovely to see him being held by his proud parents. So full of hopes and dreams for their little boy.

Unfortunately children are not born with guarantees for making us happy or fulfilling our dreams for them. Each one is born with a genetic make up unique to them. The influences that shape them along their life journey, will be both positive and negative. What they hold onto as truth will be largely determined by them and what they choose to believe. We can share our faith, we can make sure our children are included in a supportive Godly church environment, and we can even send them to a Christian school, but that doesn't guarantee our children will choose to follow Christ.

This morning, I was reading about King David, a man devoted to God, but with a very messy home life. Mind you, when you have numerous wives/concubines and children, not surprising! David's Godliness certainly didn't filter down to all his sons. You may recall the story of Absalom (from II Samuel) who wanted his father, David's, kingdom for himself and set out with his supporters to kill David and the people loyal to him. Again, David found himself fleeing for his life as he had done from King Saul earlier.

How crushed David must have felt by the betrayal of his son. However, when Absalom was finally killed by David's men, David mourned him deeply. Despite all the hurt his son had caused him, David still loved him.

How do you handle that kind of pain? Just like David did..... you pour it out to God (Psalms 3: 3-4 "But you, LORD, are a shield around me, my glory, the One who lifts my head high. I call out to the LORD, and he answers me from his holy mountain").

God understands completely the pain caused by erring children.

God bless
